The Practice of Patience

Patience is a virtue of primary importance and daily necessity. As we need bread to live, so every day, even every moment we need patience, because every day and every moment brings with it its own trial. We become patient by making acts of patience, that is, by accustoming ourselves to accept peacefully all that contradicts us and makes us suffer. If, however, instead of accepting annoyances, we use every means possible to avoid them, we shall never acquire patience. For example, we may at our work come in contact with someone who clashes with us, or we may be given a difficult or disagreeable task; if under these or similar circumstances we do our utmost to free ourselves as soon as possible, asking for a change, we are depriving ourselves of a precious opportunity prepared for us by God Himself to make us practice the virtue of patience. In certain cases it is lawful and even a duty to represent our problems to our superiors and to ask humbly for a solution, but we should never insist on obtaining one at all costs. On the contrary, we should think that divine Providence has arranged these circumstances to help us acquire the patience we do not yet possess. St. Philip Neri once complained to Our Lord because he had to deal with an extremely insulting, disagreeable person. Our Lord replied to him interiorly, “Philip, you have asked for patience. Here is the means of acquiring it.”

God will surely give us the virtue we ask of Him, but only on condition that we make use of the means He gives us, and apply ourselves to practice that virtue with the help of His grace. Whoever wishes to become a saint will not be anxious to avoid opportunities for practicing patience, but will welcome them, recognizing in them the means offered by God for his sanctification. And how can a mere creature dare wish to make any change in what has been ordered “in measure, and number, and weight” by God’s infinite wisdom?

God can draw good out of evil; therefore, He can, and in fact does, use our faults and even our sins and the sins of others, to make us practice patience; patience with ourselves, seeing ourselves so frail, so imperfect, so prone to fall, yet humbly recognizing our faults and bearing their consequences peacefully; patience with others, being indulgent toward their frailties, compassionating the weaknesses of each one, and accepting without irritation the discomfort and sufferings caused by their faults. For example, when anyone disturbs or provokes us, we must not stop to consider his manner of behaving, for that would rouse our indignation, making it more difficult to practice patience. Instead, we should turn our gaze away from the creature to fix it upon God who permits this contradiction to make us advance in virtue. We should also avoid complaining about our sufferings to others, or even to ourselves. Complaints always make the heart bitter, rendering it ill-disposed to accept trials calmly. “To suffer and be silent for You, my God” is the motto of the patient soul who wishes to conform its conduct to that of Jesus in His Passion: “He was offered. . . and He opened not His mouth.” If we feel the need of a little help in bearing a trial, let us speak of it only to those who will encourage us to suffer for the love of God, and not to those who will give us merely human consolation and sympathy, thereby nourishing our resentment toward those who make us suffer.

The Chalice

Salome had a mother’s love and to a mother’s love there is no limit. That was why she did not hesitate to make that bold request of Jesus for her sons: “Say that these my two sons may sit one on Your right hand and the other on Your left in Your kingdom.” It was a bold request, indeed, and for a moment Jesus was silent. Then, turning to the youths, He put the question: “Can you drink the chalice that I shall drink?”

Oftentimes when the grace of God is strong upon us we find ourselves approaching the boldness of Salome and praying the prayer: Lord Jesus, make me a saint. It is a good prayer to pray, but we must be ready to answer the question addressed to the sons of the pleading mother: Can you drink the chalice?

Lord Jesus, make me a saint! No weakling’s prayer that, and if I pray it I must be ready to pay the price. To be a saint means suffering. It means treading in the bloodstained footprints of Him who has gone before bearing His Cross and crowned with thorns; choosing to be misunderstood, despised, ill-treated by my fellow men; bearing with patience, not this merely, but with joy, the cruel remark that cuts into my soul, the taunts and jeers and ridicule of those who can see only folly in a life of otherworldiness.

It means unfailing constancy in laboring at tasks that vex and gail and have no thankfulness in them, and yet are God’s good will for me. It means in sweet docility to kiss the cross my Father sends, and never to complain, though the burden be quite crushing to my frailty. All this it means to be a saint. Can I drink the Chalice?

The Primitive Church

By Rev. D.I. Lanslots, O.S.B.

How did the Catholic Church get started? Here is recorded the exciting history of the Catholic Church, beginning with the descent of the Holy Ghost upon the Apostles on Pentecost Sunday and continuing through the death of St. John the Evangelist at the end of the first century. The author relates all the principal events in the dramatic founding of the Catholic Church:

The conversion of 3,000 when the Apostles first left the Cenacle, the stoning of St. Stephen (the first martyr), the miraculous conversion of Cornelius (the first gentile Christian), the Council of Jerusalem, the martyrdom of St. James, how the Apostles propagated the new religion, Sts. Peter and Paul in Rome, their martyrdom, the early persecutions, the destruction of Jerusalem, the writing of the New Testament, the early popes and martyrs, and the death of St. John. This book will show that the Apostles and their disciples were on fire with Christ, literally consumed themselves spreading Christianity, and testified to its truth with their blood.

New to St. Stephen’s?

Please stop by the office or bookstore and pick up a registration form. It is very helpful for us to have contact information for your family, even if you cannot come to St. Stephen’s every week.

If you do not have envelopes and would like them you can pick up a box in the bookstore. The use of envelopes is very helpful for our bookkeeping system.

~ Summer Dress Code ~

Please recall that all are required to dress with modesty and dignity. A sign in the vestibule gives some details for proper dress. The spirit of these rules is to produce an atmosphere befitting the house of God and the worship of Him through the Sacrifice of the Mass. Our choice of clothing becomes an expression of our worship. Therefore it is not a matter of trying to follow arbitrary rules, but doing our best for God in such a privileged place. Especially for women, this requires us to be counter-cultural. It is also important to dress well on the church grounds too.

At the same time, we request that you leave the business of making any corrections of individuals to the priests at St. Stephen’s or their delegates. It will not be helpful to have all take on the duty of policing the church.
