FROM THE PASTOR

The Folded Chasubles, Part 1

by Fr. Adrian Fortescue

The rules for the use of folded chasubles are these. They are worn in cathedrals and the chief churches [i.e. parishes] by the deacon and subdeacon, instead of dalmatic and tunicle, on days of fasting and penance, except vigils of Saints' days and Christmas Eve, which have dalmatic and tunicle. Folded chasubles therefore are used on Sundays and weekdays of Advent and Lent, when the Mass is of the season. Except from this the third Sunday of Advent and weekdays on which its Mass may be repeated. Except also the fourth Sunday of Lent, Maundy Thursday and (for the deacon) Holy Saturday at the blessing of the Paschal candle and Mass. Folded chasubles are used further on Ember days (except in the Whitsun octave [i.e., the octave of Pentecost]), on Whitsun Eve before Mass (not at the red Mass), on Candlemas at the blessing of candles and procession. From this it follows that the folded chasuble is always violet, except on Good Friday, when it is black. But the violet colour does not always involve folded chasubles. On Christmas Eve, on the three Sundays Septuagesima, Sexagesima, Quinquagesima and (for lack of rosy vestments) in some churches on mid-Advent and mid-Lent the ministers wear violet dalmatic and tunicle.

The folded chasubles (not the colour violet) are the test for the organ to be silent.

P.S. The violet solemn set, with folded chasubles, was just released from customs (having been shipped from Spain). The black set should arrive in early April. They are very beautiful; photographs will be forthcoming soon.
