FROM THE PASTOR

The Folded Chasubles, Part 2

by Fr. Adrian Fortescue

The chasubles are now folded about half-way up in the front. The ministers wear the same vestments as usual, with this one exception. The folded chasubles are taken off when they have some special office to perform. During the last collect the subdeacon takes off his, assisted by the second acolyte, who then lays it on the sedilia. He sings the Epistle in alb and maniple. When he has received the celebrant's blessing and has handed the book to the MC, he goes to the sedilia and puts on the folded chasuble again, assisted by the second acolyte. He then moves the Missal.

The deacon goes to the sedilia as soon as the celebrant begins to read the Gospel. Here, assisted by the first acolyte, he takes off the folded chasuble, which is laid there. Formerly he folded it lengthwise and put it over his shoulder. [Since this can be difficult,] he is therefore allowed to use instead a broad band of violet silk (black on Good Friday) [i.e. the broad stole]. As it is not really a stole there is no cross on it. The deacon puts it on over the real stole, from the left shoulder to under the right arm, where he gathers it together with the ends of the girdle. He then takes the Evangeliarum and puts it on the altar as usual. He remains so vested till after the Communion. Then, when he has carried the Missal to the Epistle side, he goes again to the sedilia, takes off the "broad stole" and puts on the folded chasuble, assisted as before by the first acolyte. In putting on and taking off this garment he does not kiss it... There is no reason why he should not carry out the original plan, namely, to fold his chasuble (or use one previously folded) and wear that in a long strip across his shoulder, if he can do so.

P.S. The violet solemn set has arrived! The appropriate parts of it will be used for Masses this Sunday. The black solemn set with folded chasubles should arrive soon.
