Communion, A Divine Education

In accordance with the honor which kingly majesty owes to itself, the education of a prince is placed in the care of some very learned, noble, and distinguished man. When the young prince is grown, the king himself will teach him the art of ruling men. He alone may teach him this art, because he alone practices it.

We Christians are all princes of Jesus Christ; we are of the blood royal. Our Lord confides the formation of our youth to His ministers, who tell us of God, explaining His nature and His attributes. They show Him to us, promise Him to us; but they can not make us feel Him or comprehend His goodness. So Jesus Christ Himself comes on the day of our First Communion to make us feel the hidden and inmost meaning of all the instructions we have received. What words and books were powerless to accomplish, Jesus Himself comes to do: to reveal Himself to the soul. This is assuredly the triumph of the Eucharist, that It molds the spiritual man, forms Jesus Christ within us. Our interior education will always be incomplete, unless it is the work of our Lord Himself.

So Jesus comes to us to teach us all truth. One who does not go to Communion has only a theoretical knowledge. He knows only terms for the most part, being ignorant of the things for which they stand. Jesus has not manifested Himself to him. Such a person may know the definition, the rule of a virtue, and the progressive stages necessary in its development; he does not know our Lord Himself. He is like the blind man of the Gospel who, before he knew our Lord, called Him a great prophet, a friend of God. But when Jesus Christ had revealed Himself to him, he saw God, fell at His feet, and adored Him.

The soul, likewise, which before Communion has had only an idea and knowledge of our Lord gained from books, sees and recognizes Him with rapture at the Holy Table. Our Lord is not truly made known to us excepting through Himself. We then learn the truth from living and substantial Truth. As the sun manifests itself by its own light, so Jesus Christ manifests Himself not by the light of reason, but by His own light. This intimate revelation impels the spirit to seek the hidden meaning of the mysteries, to sound the depths of the love and the goodness of God in His works. This knowledge is not like ordinary science, dry and sterile; it is sweet and full of affection; one knows and one feels at the same time; it is a knowledge which impels to love, inflames, urges to action. Through it, we enter into the heart of the mysteries; our adoration after Communion, moved by the grace of Communion, is not content to remain on the surface but sees, searches into, and contemplates the divine plan: "It searcheth the deep things of God."

Charity is Not Selfish

Charity "seeketh not her own". Attention to the needs and sorrows of others, with a constant readiness to give one's help, is no justification for expecting a like return. "Do good, and lend, hoping for nothing thereby; and your reward shall be great, and you shall be the sons of the Highest; for He is kind to the unthankful and to the evil." "Charity does not give in order to receive; it gives without counting the cost and without measure, for it knows that the honor of serving and loving God in His creatures is ample reward. Charity loves, serves, gives, and spends itself lavishly, solely for the sake of loving and serving God in others, for the joy of imitating His infinite generosity, for the joy of feeling itself the child of the heavenly Father who bestows His favors upon all without distinction. What greater reward can there be than to be able to call ourselves, and to be in all truth, children of God! To enjoy this reward, charity seeks to fly from every earthly recompense and hides the good it does. "Let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doth." It seeks by preference to benefit those from whom it can expect nothing in return: "When thou makest a dinner or a supper, call not thy friends, nor thy brethren. . .lest perhaps they also invite thee again and a recompense be made to thee. But when thou makest a feast, call the poor, the maimed, the lame, and the blind; and thou shalt be blessed, because they have not wherewith to make thee recompense." How the logic of the Gospel differs from the logic of human calculations!

"O eternal god, the soul who truly loves You spends itself for its neighbor and cannot do otherwise, for its love for You and its of neighbor are one and the same thing; the more the soul loves its neighbor, because love of neighbor has its source in You." ~ St. Catherine of Siena

Confraternity Prayer for Priests

V. Remember, O Lord, Thy congregation.
 R. Which Thou hast possessed from the beginning.
 Let us pray.
 O Lord Jesus, born to give testimony to the Truth, Thou who lovest unto the end those whom Thou hast chosen, kindly hear our prayers for our pastors. Thou who knowest all things, knowest that they love Thee and can do all things in Thee who strengthens them. Sanctify them in Truth. Pour into them, we beseech Thee, the Spirit whom Thou didst give to Thy apostles, who would make them, in all things, like unto Thee. Receive the homage of love which they offer up to Thee, who hast graciously received the threefold confession of Peter. And so that a pure oblation may everywhere be offered without ceasing unto the Most Holy Trinity, graciously enrich their number and keep them in Thy love, who art one with the Father and the Holy Ghost, to whom be glory and honor forever. Amen.

~ Summer Dress Code ~

Please recall that everyone is expected to dress with modesty and in a way befitting the house of God. Our choice of clothing is an expression of our worship; it may also affect the ability of others to worship. Dress should conceal rather than reveal. There is a sign in the vestibule that gives more details regarding proper dress. It is further expected that modesty in dress be maintained on the church grounds at all times.

We do request that the correction of visitors in this matter be left to the priests or their delegates

"Most Holy Mother of God, John & Julia and all of their family, humbly thank thee for thy most wonderful motherly protection."
