The Sacrament of God's Goodness

Communion gives us perseverance to the end. One who rarely receives Communion may keep himself in a state of grace for heaven; but how far away heaven is, and what faith he must have to keep his eyes fixed constantly on so distant a hope! The life of faith is then but one continual sacrifice, a battle waged without truce or refreshment and with no effective, supporting force. He is like a traveler far from his native land; the long road consumes his strength and brings him to the point of despair.

But if we often receive Communion, oh, how much easier it is to preserve grace in its first purity! We no longer have to guard it carefully for a far-distant goal, but simply for tomorrow, for today. We know it is the garb of honor which admits us to the Feast. Therefore we avoid sin out of love, that we may not be deprived of Holy Communion. Thus Communion becomes a sure defense against sin and enables us to overcome it easily to the end of our life. I am speaking of willful sin.

How could the soul that communicates every day and to which Communion means so much yield to temptation? It knows that sin would deprive it of what it so greatly desires. The thought of its next Communion rises before the soul, strengthens it, encourages it, and prevents it from falling.

I confess that the state of grace is incomprehensible to me unless it is supported by Communion.

Besides, that is the intention of the Church who, through the Council of Trent, encourages us to receive Communion daily. There are those who would have us exercise great caution in this regard. Doubtless, say they, the Church is right in theory, but in practice we must make sparing use of this advice. It is enough, according to them, for the faithful in general to receive Communion on the principal feast days.

People sometimes ask how Europe lost the faith. Alas! It was by not receiving Communion any more, or hardly at all! Jansenism drove the faithful away from the Holy Table; they lost the awareness of Jesus Christ, the spirit of faith and love; now they are benumbed and paralyzed; they faint from hunger. How shall we restore their strength? Give them again the substantial Bread the Church offers them; revive them at the Eucharistic fire, place them beneath the influence of this life-giving Sun.

So Communion makes the state of grace desirable and assures its permanence, because Jesus Christ becomes its direct and immediate end. Communion gives us constancy in virtue and ease in its practice by nourishing the love of God in us; it makes virtue sweet and inviting by giving it a living and active object. We can never encourage frequent Communion too strongly. It is not an abuse. Is it an abuse for a child to visit its father and keep near him? It is the same with one of the faithful who seeks frequent Communion with our Lord.

The Promises of the Sacred Heart

There is no greater proof of our Lord's earnest desire that we practice devotion to His Heart than the remarkable and almost unbelievable promises He made to those who carry out His requests.

When we stop to consider that the one who made these promises is the second Person of the Most Blessed Trinity, "who can neither deceive nor be deceived," we are amazed that individuals and families should hesitate to place all their trust in the Sacred Heart for the solution of each and every one of their difficulties. We can apply to the Sacred Heart the words of St. Paul to the Hebrews: "Do not let us waiver in acknowledging the hope that we cherish. We have a promise from One who is true to His word."

If Jesus promises, He intends to keep them. No one can ever accuse Him of breaking His word. For those who trust Him and who carry out His requests, He will, if necessary, work miracles to redeem His pledge. One day, He said to St. Margaret Mary, "Do you believe I can do this? If you believe, you will see the power of My Heart in the magnificence of My love."

The Gospels are filled with examples. Consider but one of them. Our Lord demanded of Martha and Mary a tremendous act of faith and trust before He restored their brother Lazarus to life. Yet when they made it, He worked one of His greatest miracles.

The same is true of those who believe in the promises of the Sacred Heart. How many miracles of grace has He not performed for those who trusted Him, even though they did not see how He could possibly solve their problems!

Take the case of a sister whose story was related by Father Mateo. When she became a nun she offered her prayers and sacrifices, her Masses and Communions, her hours of adoration, her entire life in fact, for the conversion of her brother, a hardened sinner. Long years went by, and reports from home became increasingly worse as her brother plunged deeper and deeper into a life of sin. But she never lost hope, nor did her confidence in the Sacred Heart fail. Finally, one day came the news that her brother had committed suicide. He had drowned Himself by jumping from a bridge. Everyone who knew him thought he went straight to hell.

Yet, his sister with the faith that moves mountains, never once doubted the mercy of the Heart of Jesus. "It is impossible," she said, "that after all these years of prayers and sacrifices my brother's soul is lost. I don't know how, but I believe my brother's soul has been saved."

Our Lord rewarded the blind faith of this generous sister. One night she was awakened from sleep in her cell. She seemed to see her brother in a coffin that was all on fire. He told her that he was in purgatory suffering for his sins, but assured of salvation. Thanks to her prayers and sacrifices, to her Masses and Communions, he had received the grace to make an Act of Contrition the moment he jumped from the bridge. Once more the Sacred Heart had proved that he never breaks His word.

Prayer for Priestly and Religious Vocations

Priest: Let us pray for priestly and religious vocations.
All: O God, we earnestly beseech Thee to bless the Church with many priests, brothers, and sisters, who will love Thee with their whole hearts, be faithful to their vocations, and gladly spend their entire lives to teach Thy truths, serve Thy Church, and to make Thee known and loved.

Priest: Bless our families, bless our children.
All: Choose from our homes those who are needed for Thy work.
Priest: O Mary, Queen of priestly and religious vocations:
All: Pray for us. Pray for our priests, seminarians and religious. Obtain for us the grace of many more. Amen.

(Please offer your reception of Holy Communion on the first Sunday of the month for vocations)

Prayer of Parents for Priestly and Religious Vocations

O God, grant that at least one of our sons may become a priest or religious brother, and one of our daughters a religious sister. We ourselves want to live as good Christians, and to guide our children always to do what is right, so that we may receive the grace, O God, to be allowed to give Thee a holy priest, brother, or sister! Amen.

*(Conclude with an Our Father, Hail Mary and Glory Be)
 (based on a prayer recited by the parents of Lu Monferrato, Italy)*

~ Summer Dress Code ~

Please recall that everyone is expected to dress with modesty and in a way befitting the house of God. Our choice of clothing is an expression of our worship; it may also affect the ability of others to worship. Dress should conceal rather than reveal. There is a sign in the vestibule that gives more details regarding proper dress. It is further expected that modesty in dress be maintained on the church grounds at all times.

We do request that the correction of visitors in this matter be left to the priests or their delegates.
